RECOMMENDS NEW SCHOOLS TO ACCOMMODATE PUPILS.

President Keechler Says Facilities Are Inadequate for Over

As the result of a trip through East St. | Louis by Albert Keechler, president of the School Board, accompanied by the members of the board, it was stated yesterday by Mr. Keechler that the city was in need of at least six temporary school buildings to accommodate 1,000 pupils for whom there is

Mr. Keechler aid, that, with the schools which were creeted last year, the capacity had been estimated for between 10,000 and 12,000 families, but that there are now is, 600 families in the city and about 1,00 children who must be taken cars of immediately. He recommends the creetion of new school buildings to be built this year.

Mr. Keechler's temporary pian to refleve the congestion is to creet portable schools at the Central High School, Longfellow, Washington and Monroe chools. The matter will be taken up at a special meeting of the Board of Education.

This condition was illustrated in the dealings of Thursday and Friday. Under the innuence of the favorable decision in the Hodge suit the trading element on Thurs-day created a marked demonstration in United States Steel stocks and the total dealings of the day ran up to about 800,000 dealings of the day ran up to about $80,000 shares.

These dealings were reduced by nearly one-balf during the following day, partly upon the discovery that inside interests had been heavy sellers of the steel stocks on the advance and that the public had made no response to what Wall street re-garded as a highly favorable development. It has of course not escaped the shrewd observation of Wall street, that, with many highly favorable factors present in underhighly avoidable lacers present in underlying conditions, manipulators and syndicate abukers alike seem inclined to let the market pursue its own course, extending some slight support to prevent or discourage reaction, but making, with the New Oriean New Oriean time the leaders of both the Eastern and Western bull contingent appear disinclined to take any initiative while their immediate following are still nursing the wounds and bruises of the recent conflict.

Wail street wonders why, with so many favorable features in the underlying situation, the speculative marker continues apathetic and ignores apparently the fact that none of its former conspicuous leaders are at present active and that prevailing prices have already discounted a great deal of the existing prosperity.

Doubt as to the continuance of prevailing conditions of industrial prosperity would be removed, temporarily, at least, if the men who really make the market—the investing public—were fully asured as to the outcome conditions of industrial prosperity would be removed, temporarily, at least, if the men who really make the market—the investing public—were fully asured as to the outcome of the crops.

It is ar yet too early to obtain any data of value upon this all-important matter, but within a few weeks now some information of real value will be obtained of the winter-sown crops in the Southwest.

These start far better this season than last, and the country has a bounteous past harvest to reckon from, not a crop disaster, as was the case a year ago.

A twelvemouth back and all Wall street was apprehensive that the drought of the summer of 1991, which had continued through the winter months, would work another disaster to winter wheat and possibly to corn. But the losses were less severe in most of the States than had been apprehended, and present promises are far brighter.

Unless the signs fail it is a discriminating public with which Wall street has to deal, and with the multitude of securities awaiting purchasers and the prevailing high prices of most securities, it is not likely that all stocks can share equally in improvement.
